

Disclaimer

The EchoRight™ App (the "App") is a tool intended to help educate Health Care Professionals to detect Pulmonary Hypertension ("PH") signs on echocardiography.

The App is not a diagnostic tool, and an echocardiography alone is not sufficient to diagnose PH. To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law, Janssen disclaims any responsibility, warranty and liability for any malfunction or error of the App.

It has been developed by Actelion Pharmaceuticals Ltd, one of the Janssen Pharmaceutical Companies of Johnson & Johnson ("Janssen") in partnership with a scientific committee (the "Scientific Committee") composed of clinician experts in the management of PH and echocardiography. The clinical descriptions and echocardiography images and Loops used in this App are extracted from real patient cases and have been selected by the Scientific Committee. This information is anonymized, meaning that no patient can be identified through the data displayed in the App. The medical content relies primarily on published recommendations from Scientific societies but in some instances, these experts have added comments based on their clinical experience which are in line with published recommendations to strengthen the educational value of the case.

Janssen does not collect any personal data in connection with the use of this App.

This App is intended for use by health care professionals only.

By installing and starting the App, you confirm that you are a health care professional, and that you agree with the disclaimer above, the terms of service and the privacy policy.

Reference number: EM-119555

I have read the Privacy Policy

I have read the Terms of Use